HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 10th, 1876.

In the Peking Gazette of the 8th ultimo we find some interesting particulars of the recent agitation in the province of Chekiang. The city of Wênchow would seem to have been the centre from which the secret conspirators directed the movement. They are said to belong to a society known as the "Gold Coin." which organised a rebellion in the roign of the Emperor Hren-rung. A man named SHE HUNG-Ao is accused of being the leader in the conspiracy. He was formerly intimate with LI SHIH-NIEN, one of the chiefs of the Taiping rebellion, and figured prominently in the Gold Coin insurrection. It appears that he was in the habit of collecting his adherents under the pretence of conducting religious services, and on one occasion the Sub-Prefect of Yung-kia surprised the traitors while assembled together. SHE HUNG-AO and several more were taken prisoners. Tho officer also seized a number of soditious books. containing incantations, magic writing, and treasonable sentiments; a wooden seal bearing the legend "Heaven's Right Way; vellow silk badges with the words "Guard the Imperial Embryo"; gold coins; and foreign weapons. She Hung-Ao, it is said, confessed, when examined-probably under torture, however-that he had come to Yung-kin for the purpose of inflaming the public mind and propagating sedition SHE HUNG-AO at one time, it seems, joined the Roman Catholic Church, but it is doubtful whether he ever thought much about religion, but rather used it as a cloak for his disloyal intrigues. It is not surprising, therefore, to hear that when a French missionary was appealed to, he stated that although the prisoner had embraced the Catholic faith, the articles found in his were not things used in the Church, and he requested that the law might be allowed to take its course. The result i was that a very brief period indeed was suffered to clapse before Mr. She Hung-An lost his head, and the incipient rebellion of it until the 4th instant

THE LATE DISASTERS ON THE AUSTRALIAN COAST. We take from the Australian Sketcher the ollowing griphic account of the recent terrifi storm on the const and the disasters at sea caused by it :---

On Sunday, September 10, a storm hegan rage at Sydney, which before it deseed, was the cause of great desiruction of property on land, and far greater and more deplorable losses property and life at sea. The storm oams on as coutherly wind which in the night increases to a terrific gale, with heavy rain, and continue with little diminution throughout the following day. The ships Great and Tweed, which wer lying in the stream, dragged their anchors, and went on the rooks at North Shore. The steam. forry Guinea, and several steam launches, and two lighters went ashore in the same place. Government punt was bilged at Manly, and a yacht drifted on the rocks at Chowder Bay. Another launch was sunk off Circular Quay. The barque Dorothea was capsized off Grafton wharf. The barque Australian Packet went ashore at Lavender Bay. A boat capeized in the harbour, and one man was drowned, and another man named Kenny was also drowned by the apectting of a bout. Three new houses at Stanmore were blown down, and numerous While the weather was thus raging wit the harbour, its effects outside the Heads were taken altogether the Russian side, considers it of Tuesday, 12th September. Gasette and the Augsburger Allgemeine Zeitung, Jue Morrison requested Captain Paddle to redetermined to face the gale. Soon after passing Cape St. George the vessel shipped a number harricanes The wheel was smushed and the binnacle washed away, the chip at the time going round like a top. The crew behaved Epleudidly, and rigged a temporary steering the captain at last determined to return: but the weather being buzy and thick, he could not ascertain rightly where he was, and put the ship's bend to are. Then commenced laughter amongst the horses. Eros and Mr. Evane's Gwandoline filly were about the first to succumb, being washed on to the deck, and killed. Poncher followed, then Burgundy was killed. Nemesia was thrown on to the deck. and was drowned where she lay; so was Sovereign. Etoile du Matin baving also been killed: The greatest loss of all was Robin Bood who fell under the other borses, and notwithstanding the efforts of Davis, Morrison, and Harris, and the chief officer, he also was killed. In the meanwhile the terrible seas that swept over the ship bad carried away two boats, and smashed another. Then a fearful sea stove in one side of the engine-room, and the saloon was flooded with water. Men were kept employed baling out the cabing night and day. All day on Monday the cale biew with terrific force, and the ship kept dodging about at sea, most of the passengers fearing for her safety. Captain Stappoole, of the ship Shannon, kept up the spirits of the male passengers, and Mrs. Stacpoole those of female passengers, though one or two of the latter created some alarm by their fears. Nearly every bed in the soloon was esturated with water and few of the passengers slept night or day. On Tuesday morning there were signs of a slight improvement, and the captain steered a course for Sydney Heads. The Sylvia colt was the last of the horses to die, and then the Ohrvsolite cult and Redwood were the only two left of the eleven shipped. The former fell down, and it was feared he would die, but Davis and Morrison stuck to him manually, and just as the colt appeared to be at the point of death the Heads were sighted, and the ship was soon n smooth water. Another quarter of an hour at sea would have been fatel to the Derby winner. The passengers raised a subscription for the crew, and a testimonial was presented to the captain by a portion of the passengers, though Mr. Kit, the phief officer, was considered by others entitled to one also. Throughout this tremendous gale the shin behaved admirably.

As soon as the disaster became known, the New South Waies Government desputched the Government steamer Thetis to the sounce of the wreck, and also telegraphed to Wollongong, Kiama, Terrara, Marura, and Jervis Bay, to send out any assistance available. In addition to the valuable general cargo the Dandeneng had on bourd, she was also carrying 160 high-class stud sheep, which had been purchased by New South Wales and Riverina buyers at the recent annual ram sales held by Mesars. Powers, Rutherford, and Co., and Ettershank, Englestone, and Co. The Dandenong was well known as a regular trader between this port and Sydney, and was norchased at home by the owner, Captain W Howard Smith, who brought her out here. She was a staumoh and trongly-constructed screw steamer, of 743 tone, builder's measurement, and was built in 1867 at Palmer's Iconworks. Jarrow on Type, the same yard from which were launched the Barrabool and Queensland. She was of the following dimensions:-Length. 201ft.: beam, 28ft. 2in.; and depth of hold. 15ft. 7in.: and her bull was in three waterwith compartments. Like the rest of the boats of her line, she way kept in most efficient order, and her passenger accommodation had been ultired and improved some time ago. The value placed upon her by the owner is £20,000, but she is only covered by insurance to the extent £14.000. It is rumoured to have first made its appearance in some villages near Ampts, whence its ravages have extended to the extreme Eastern part of Calcutta; but now it has spread all over the country lying on both sides of the Gunges. It is somewhat like the poison of the obra. It first attacks either the toes, or the fingers, and then affects the whole body, when it becomes dengerous and destructive to human life. Yesterday, at about five o'clock, a carpenter and a Hindustani of Silipore were attacked by this disease, and there being no remedy at hand, they first bound their fingers with strings, and then applied a native autidote, named Gratokumari, by which means they have been sured. However, as the disease is most prevalent bere, I think it is necessary for our medical practitioners not to leave a stone anturned to find some sure and immediate remedy for the poison; and I shall feel much obliged if you will kindly give this letter a prominent insertion, so as to attract their

The difficulties experienced by foreigners in speaking or writing our language are often commented on. Our Scandinaviau neighbours seen quite as much at sex in writing English as are stranger: further afield, and some curious netances of their eccentric spelling have inst come under our notice. Mr. V. T. It is only due to the deciphering nowers of the Postal authorities to say that these letters generally come to Mr. Townsend without delay. Occasionally a North Europe communication goes to Wisbeach instead of Ipswich, or vice versa, but not often. It may also be a ated that the transmission of such missives is sometimes helped by the northern version of the county, "Suffolg," following the word intended for Ipswich. ALGERIA AND INDIA The Paris correspondent of The Times, writing in the 26th September, says :- A. Bonupartist organ, which, now that Imperialism is under a cloud, is apt to represent the prospects of France and the world as equally gloomy, stated a day or two ago that the Algerian Mussulmaus were uncasy at the critical state of Turkey, and that an outbreak was to be apprehended. This has drawn forth an official communiqué, which affirms that the Algerians are perfectly tranquil. A letter in the Débats confirms this view. The writer has taken pains to ascertain the feeling of the Tribes not in regular contact with Europeans, and consequently less distrustful and reserved than natives in constant intercourse with the colonists. The result of his inquiry has convinced him that the general idea of Massulman solidarity is unfounded. Whatever the case may have been during the first few centuries of Mahomedanism; the rivalry of different dynasties and the conflicting pretensions to supremacy of rolers at Bagdad and in Spain, Morocco, and Persia bave destroyed the sentiment of a common headship. In Central and West Africa the Mahomedana regard the Sultan of Morocco as Commander of the Faithful, a title which was assumed, too, by Abd-el-Kader without troubling himnell about the Grand Turk. If, therefore. the bundreds of millions of Mussulmans soattered over the globe sympathize with their gister on the 25th Sept., by its correspondent at States forming the Republic of the United brethern engaged in a war with Christians, of Colombia; and the Vice-Consul, Mr. White. there is not even a remote resemblance to the solidarity of Christendom at the time of found Mr. Giles and the remainder of his party, bas an area of 22.780 square miles, and a the Crueades. In the Province of Constantine, hordering on Tunis, it is impossible. the writer save. that these events broduce a greater impression, but that impression certainly does not extend to the mountains inhabited by the Kabyles, an industrious and unexcitable race. Nowbere has there been any hint of the Sultan in person or with money. In the Province of Oran people speak of the Sultan afforded me the following particulars: He $2,403,241. But this does not include the of Morocco, not of the Sultan of Turkey, and though during the subjugation of Algeria by the French ramours were got up of approaching deliverance by Ottomans or Moors, there hopes never led the masses to consider themselves in intimate relations with a foreign religious head.

> Now many Paris papers are in the habit of publishing letters and telegrams from distant parts of the world which certainly do not reach them by post, telegraph, or any ordinary means of communication, but are possibly written a slate by an invisible agency, and this piece of news evidently belonge to that class. It is to the last degree improbable that an Englishman in Calcutta should write to the France Nouvelle. It is even more improbable that a Calcutta Englishman should beignorant that Mecca, not Constantinople, is the object of Mussulman veneration. There is, it seems, to be another highly patriotic statue erected in Scotland. present one is in honour of King Robert Bruce, Sir William Wullace having with difficulty been already bonoured by the erection of a watchtower on the Abbey Graig, near Stirling. The site for the statue of Bruce is near Stirling Castle. The figure will be a colossal one, and represents the "patriot king" sheathing his sword in the moment of victory.

Mr. J. P. Hodson, the scoretary of the Printers' Pension Corporation, has revived his suggestion for a celebration to commemorate the four hundredth anniversary of the introduction of the art of printing to Great Britain. His idea is to hold an exhibition of antiquities and cariosities connected with the art at some suitable place next June, and to arrange for the taking place of the jubilee festival of the Printere! Corporation during the same week.

The Academy states that Mr. Furnivall's first book for the New Shakespeare's Society is in the binder's hands. It is William Stafford's examination of the complaint of his countrymen in Shakespeare's youth, A.D. 1581, about the dearness (dearth) of things, and other general social troul-lest and it contains a good deal of information as to the condition of the country. The chief cause of the rise in prices Stafford holds to be the debasement of the coin by tienry VIII.

Fortunately, the Athenaum says, un eminent artist, from whom the Houses of Parliament have already received considerable benefits, was just in time the other day to procure the suspension, if not total stoppage, of operations likely to terminate in painting the whole exterior of the edifice! A sapient official had already built a scaffold, and set men to work on this promising job. Our readers know, of course, tuat a large portion of the interior of the "houses" was painted some years ago, thus utterly ruining the beautiful colour of the stone. Mesers. Cassell. MPKBIALQUARTO... ENGLISH AND CHINESE DIOTIONARY WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

MOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been competed to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. Thotypography displays the success of an attempt to aké the Chinese and English type corres in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Orders for Copies may be sent to the Daily balmers Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 160,000, whilst MACAO .......... Mr. L. Extracts. August 24th, 1702, Boys, I'll give you a song about one that's gone long, One that all true good salts should know; For no braver a one over slood to a gun. Thin my hero old hold Benliew. Though many a mane ties a better-known fame, . I think 'tie a shaine 'tie en: So fill the min, men, and I li sing to you then; The deeds of old bold Benbow. A clipper was Drake; and a devil was Blaker Stout Dancan, Mynheer knew well; Of Rodney and Unwke vone Frenchmen don't talk And of Howe's deeds we're proud to tell. Of Corhrone the hold you've aften been told. Of Jervis's pluck all know; But Nelson himself should be laid on the shelf As soon as old bald Benbow. He couldn't houst birth, but you'll see he was worth A georg of the done who could. Fine fair-weither men, they yere nowhere when Ben Alone through the Frenchmen stood. They may make a fine fues of their high blood to us, But we know that it's often so. -That our holdest have passed from before the mest -To glory like old Bonbow-He was left in the lurch's he was not in search Of Im Casse, whom he long had sought: Through the West Indy Isles he had chasel them for Add the skulkers at last hou caught. His turn-it was come; they were hig ones some. Ten sail and says he, " We'll show Hounseer the way to Saithead to-day Wan't we lads?" save old bold Benbow. So he flung out the sign to bear down on their line. And our captains were nobs, and hot work such the snobs Thought with them wouldn't quile agree; They funked: when they found he'd fight, they were round: How he swore when he saw them go! "But we don't go, my men, though we're but one to No. we'll fight them !" said bold Beabow. So he left all behind, and before the wind Right into the ten he went: Then one captain took shome, and after him came: Real work, lade, the old don meant. At their Admiral's side hard to board he tried : At a first mto he then let go, And no more heard that, day of her; twee his way ; So he served them, did old Benbow. The work was too warm to last long; one arm Was gone; a shot tore his head; A mannon-ball then took his right leg; " My men. Bring a cradle on deck,!' he mid. While life was in him, and his chip would but swim. He scorned, lads, to go below: "If I die, boys;" says he, "never mind, d'you ses; Fight it out!" says our hold Benbow. To his four ships in sight he still signalled on "fight." But they weren't of the fighting stuff; So they left Ben alone to swear and to grown, Till Mounseer found they'd enough. And so struck was he with old Ben, d'you see, That a letter he sent; 'twas so;" "Had your Captains but lought as the cursed cowards ought, ... You'd have took me ... Moiniseer Benbow. .. "You'll hang them. I hope; they deserve well the rope, And Do Casse's hint wasn't forgot; He thought 'twas but right, so in all the fleet's sight," On his deck they were tried and shot, "I're but one leg, by heaven, but," lays he, "I'd have given That to save us this shame, I know ;" Oh, he'd all Nelson's plack, though he hadn't his lack,
So here's glory to old Benbow. Well, old walls of oak have become just a joke, And in ten-kettles we're to fi ht; It seems a oneer dream, all this iron and steam, But I deresny, my lads, it's right. But whether we float in ship or in boat, . In iron or oak, we know, For old Engined's right we've hearts that will fight. As of old did the brave Benbow: From Songs for Sailors, by W. C. BENNETT. THE FRENCH DEVIL AND HIS DOG There are a good many stories which relate how sinners have cheated Satan of his dues, among the peasantry of all countries, and to regard the devil as an individual, though Luther confessed to a personal acquaintance because his visits are still declared upon local Abbe, "and you may take me with you if how to employ them except in party procesbourhood of Bayeux and its adjacent villages, part," answered M. In Fix time he became overseer, and without Frolio pealing the wands-as the "faithful" shepherd in the Scripture is said to liave done to increase his share of the commentary on the state of education among young lambs—his share of the profits of the the Norman peasantry; but the legend hasa station increased. He took up small pormoral or two in it for people who may be tions of land also on his ewn account, and beffer taught, without being much wiser in thus having settled, he married, and in due their notions of parliamentary government or time be saw a nice little family around him. In time they also grow up, one of them to Modeste be a "winsome wee thing," a lassie. She Moorben caught the attention, and won the affections Mosquito of a well-to-do merchant in the north-western Nassau The is scarcely in the whole scope of our district, and the usual visit to the altar of Ringdove Hymen followed. The match had the approval Sieldrake of the old shepherd and small squatter; and Swinger some years after the two had been made one, Thistic the young husband, when discussing pastoral matters with his futher-in-law, expressed a Vigilant vacant wish that he had a station. then there was in the neighbourhood a as well as the right name-about to be with me to Melbourne," said the old man : " I'll pay expenses." They went to the | Naroissus auction room. The conditions were read, and Newsastle the station put up. But, after a few biddings. a voice suddenly called out "£60,000," over-topping by a very long figure all the other bidders. Whon called upon to come forward (and the old sliepherd stopped forward dressed just as be would have been when alter his flocks), there was a laugh of derision. and some reference by the auctioneer to the necessity of being provided with at least a considerable deposit." "I said £60,000," said the old man. After a time the hammer was knocked down to the bid, the anctioneer finering he had made a mock sale. Calling for the bidder, he began to recite the terms of the purchase ... £50,000 down, and the remainder at certain dates, with eight per cent added." "I know nothing of deposits Linting and eight per cents," said the old man: "I said £60,000, and here it is." He gave a a cheque for the amount on the spot.
